“I am known for my contagious enthusiasm. I am always on the lookout for practical solutions to legal challenges. I set myself apart by my collaborative and result-oriented approach.

Commercial law is my passion! It is of the ultimate importance for me to establish good working relationships with each of my clients.

I like to ski with my family. I play and write music. I also dedicate some time to non-profit organizations.”

Anastasios Kouros is a business lawyer who has over 17 years of experience in commercial transactions at the national and international levels. Anastasios manages or participates in different cases:

- Drafting and negotiation of various commercial agreements, including supply and IT agreements
- Legal and business analysis, including the evaluation of business risks
- Development and implementation of policies, including policies in virtue of the Canadian Anti-Spam Bill
- Drafting of research and development and intellectual property agreements
- Effective management of internal and external stakeholders within large scale transactions.

In particular, he handles the negotiation, redaction and revision of distribution contracts, service conventions and logistic agreements including third-party logistics. He advises our clients in the fields of advertising, advertising contests and privacy.

He has negotiated and drafted contracts for large construction projects throughout the globe, including facilities for distribution, manufacturing, and research and development in Brazil, China, Canada and the United States.
